Work Experience

WEB DEVELOPER, Lessek Contractors and Suppliers.

Responsibility: I designed and built the company's website's front end.

As part of supporting and managing the businesses' websites, I also planned and created software solutions and online applications. I also built layouts using HTML5 and CSS3 in accordance to company specifications. I regularly checked the authenticity and functionality of information and elements on websites and pages. Provided end-user training with a team of developers on content management systems so that users could easily update and maintain the website without the help of developers

FREELANCE WEB DEVELOPER

Responsibility: I developed user-interactive and responsive websites like a delivery company site using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. I have specialized in client-side application (front-end developer) and ongoing training in server side application (Back-end developer) using node.js. I also debugged and tested websites for other developers to ensure the websites working as the the requirement states.

CUSTOMER SERVICE SPECIALIST, New York department of labor.

Responsibility: I put in the effort to ensure overall customer satisfaction. I support customers by answering calls, providing helpful information, and responding to complaints. I am the front line of support for clients and customers and I help ensure that customers are satisfied with services. I worked with the New York department of labor as a customer service specialist for a period of one and a half years.

INFORMATION COMMUNICATION TECHNOLOGY TUTOR, Oninku Junior High School (Drive 2).

Responsibility: Developing lesson plans and teaching materials, assessing the progress of students through quizzes and examinations, assisting students in areas they find difficult, taking them through technology practical and experimental learning and helping them develop their interpersonal and interpersonal skills.

Summer Internship

WEB DEVELOPER, Accra Technical University, Accra, Ghana.

Responsibility: I created and maintained the front end of websites, was with a team in charge of the general design and functionality, and oversaw some technical aspects of the website, such as its performance (website speed). In particular, I worked on speeding up page loads, and leveraging markup to build the web pages.
